

I'm not robot!

my shell to dream a little and help me to get better in touch with my emotions.” –Sara, ISTJ “I love the way ENFPs make me get out of my comfort zone to explore new things!” –Shannon, INTJ “The ENFP enthusiasm is infectious and they are great people to talk through issues with. They can come up with five different solutions to a problem when I maybe would have only thought of two or three. In my experience they make awesome, supportive friends!” –Kelli, ISFJ “As a person who can be timid and reserved, ENFPs help me interact with people I wouldn’t otherwise talk to. I now have many friends that I wouldn’t if it were not for them!” –Mandy, ISTJ “My wife is an ENFP and I love so many things about her, but mostly I love that she makes me want to be a better person. She’s compassionate, forgiving, and just so dang likable. Seriously, I don’t think I’ve met a person with something bad to say about her! Her overall brightness and “goodness” is a perfect example of how I believe I should live my life. I love what she is to and for me.” –Joel, INFJ “They’re among the few who can actually handle INTJs!” –Mark, INTJ “I love other ENFPs because they are hugs wrapped in sunshine! Such warm folks! I love that we say the same thing at the same time. I love that they love to hug. I love that they are loud and fun and exuberant. I love that I start singing anywhere and they will join me in singing and harmonizing. I love that they appreciate diversity and variety in life. I love that I can play silly games with them! Life without ENFPs will be so dull!” –Jamie, ENFP ENFPs SHARE THEIR FAVORITE PART ABOUT BEING AN ENFP “I love how optimistic I am! No matter what goes wrong, I can find a way to get over it and move on with my life... always onto bigger and better things. I know a lot of people who get stuck in their problems for such a long time but that’s definitely not me. I see a thousand ways around everything!” –Tracey, 49 “This might sound corny but I think that being an ENFP is such a magical thing. We are so full of love – I sometimes feel like I’m going to burst because my heart is so full! We just see so much good in everything and everyone around us... the world needs more ENFPs!” –Angie, 41 “I love how comfortable I can make people feel, even people I barely know or just met!” –Sara, 16 “What I love about myself as an ENFP is that I’m constantly trying to grow and be a better person and that I am so resilient. I’ve suffered a lot of pretty bad experiences in my life but I still think the world is promising and that people are essentially good.” –Kaitlyn, 43 “I like that I am confident, capable and a little bit crazy. I honestly even like the downsides of being an ENFP, like being a bit manipulative or sneaky. Those traits can be useful.” –Heather, 19 “I like that I care so much about other people. Even if it means I get hurt sometimes, I wouldn’t trade being able to feel and love this deeply.” –Landon, 24 “I love my ENFP charm!” –Jacob, 24 “I love being able to switch from silly and playful to serious and contemplative. I love the sense of joy and love we bring to our lives and to the lives of others! Even the bad has meaning to us and I think that’s more important than other people understand.” –Dylan, 22 “We have the ability to see the good in every person, in every situation – even the downright awful – we turn it around and shine some light on it. We have the ability soldier on, no matter how heartbroken or upset or hard done by we are... we get through it with our inner strength and the eternal promise of a better tomorrow. Our endless optimism ensures this. I think that’s why I am the person I am today, still soldiering on, still living life as best I can!” –Caz, 25 “I like that I can lead a group, sit in solitude for days, think far ahead, improvise, be a huge ball of energy, calm down others when they’re stressed, be a mushball, be tough and decisive, create new opportunities for myself, adapt to the world around me... I defy so many stereotypes and I like it that way!” –Amber, 30 “What’s NOT to love about being an ENFP? Life is an adventure!” –Jess, 36 “I like getting irrationally excited over everything... like the smell of springtime or a new flavor of tea. Some people don’t understand my enthusiasm about strange little things but it’s honestly one of my favorite parts of being an ENFP!” –Erica, 27 “ENFPs are so full of life! It’s like we never hit rock bottom because there’s always another great idea to distract ourselves with. We CRUSH every challenge that gets in our way!” –Mackenzie, 21 “Two words: Endless optimism.” –Alex, 34 “I used to hate being misunderstood by others but I’ve grown to love it as I age. People think you’re bubbly and then you hit them with your intelligence. People think you’re flakey and then you hit them with your determination. People think you’re selfish and then you hit them with your massive well of compassion and understanding. Proving people wrong is fun and ENFPs do it ALL the time!” –Carl, 44 “Even on the bad days, life is a big, passionate adventure, filled with people to love and opportunities to explore! Would being more down-to-earth or more organized be cool? Maybe. But not if I had to lose my energy and creativity and confidence!” –Aimee, 23 “I LIKE THAT LIFE IS MESSY! There, I said it. I know most people want to walk down a perfectly straight path in life but I don’t. I like the twists and turns. I like not knowing what’s coming next. My life may not seem normal to those around me but I don’t care. A normal life would be boring. And I hate being bored.” –Duncan, 41 ABOUT THE AUTHOR Heidi Priebe graduated from the University of Guelph, Ontario with a degree in Psychology and the firm ambition to prove her skeptical professors wrong about the Myers-Briggs Type Indicator. When she’s not blogging about the sixteen types, Heidi enjoys traveling for long periods of time as a means of avoiding her problems. She is a textbook Type 7 ENFP. This is her first book.
